The Raven Staff

In editing the 1961-62 volume of the Raven, we, the staff, have endeavored to present a theme that will be appropriate to the background of the students of Ben Eielson High. After thirty different suggestions and much deliberation, we selected "Globetrotters" as a theme typical of these students.

It has been the purpose of this staff to present a record of the day to day activities in which you, the students of Ben Eielson High, participated this year - Freshman Initiation, the Christmas Formal, the Class B Tournament, and many others. As you globetrot in future years, may you receive as much enjoyment from looking through this annual as we have in working together to put it out for you.

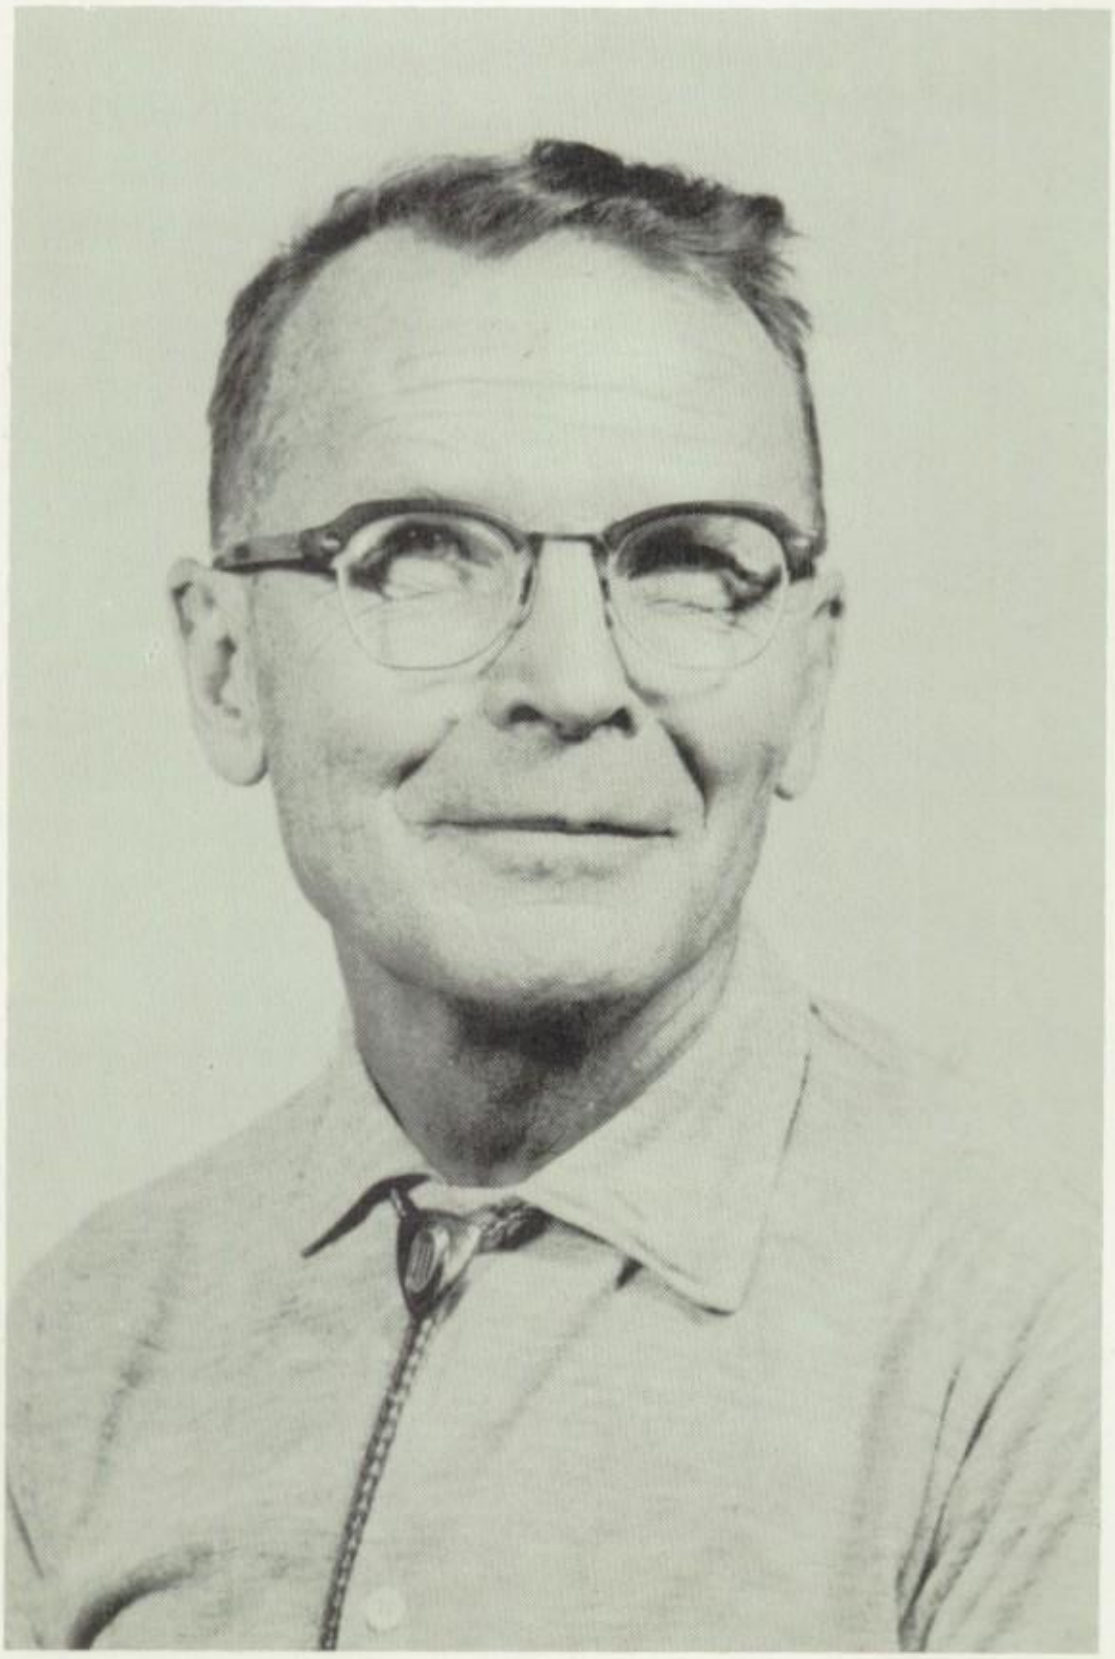
BEN EIELSON HIGH SCHOOL

Dedication



MR. JOHN MOORE: EIELSON GLOBETROTTER

Mr. John Moore has taught practically everything at Ben Eielson High School except home economics and girls' P.E. His teaching career is typical of his entire life, for few men have done as many things, lived in as many places, or developed as rich a background as the mild little man with the not-so-mild neckties all Eielson has come to respect and love.

Mr. Moore was born April 18, 1905, in Salem, Indiana. He began his travels early, attending elementary school in Indiana, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Utah, and New Mexico. Hard study and participation in many extracurricular activities got him through high school in three years and a $200 scholarship from an Omaha newspaper in his senior year.

The question "What to major in in college" bothered Mr. Moore, just as it bothers seniors today. He started in pre-med at the University of Omaha, but changed to the liberal arts at parental urging.

When the depression struck, his paychecks came from a furniture factory in Chicago. He was sent to Festus, Mo., where he reorganized the factory, but finally it, too, closed its doors because of bankruptcy. Mrs. Moore often talks of her husband's reaction to these years: "He had made many good friends in this area of the Ozarks, so he stayed on living in a little cabin in the park area and worked on neighborhood farms for his three meals a day. I think he really enjoyed this part of his life as it let him see into the lives of many families and share with them their joys and sorrows and pleasures."

Other depression era jobs included time-keepihg for a road gang on a Nebraska railroad; farming; and book-keeping for a lumber company in Lincoln.

He married Mary Louise West in Sidney, Iowa in November, 1938. A yen to move West took the Moores and their new baby daughter to Butte, Montana in 1940. Architectural drafting and mechanical engineering during the war made Mr. Moore homesick for the farm. So they moved again, together with their new young son, John.

Mrs. Moore humorously describes the hectic years of alfalfa, sugar beets, grain, and calves. "I think he would like to have commuted from a good farm near Butte to his job at A.C.M. every day, but I could not see living on a rocky farm and trying to grow what? Rocks? So we bought an 80 acre layout in 1949 six miles north of Bison Range at Moiese, Mont. Mr. Moore changed his job to the USSIS (Indian Service) in Polson, and I worked in the hospital as a nurse. He traveled to the farm on week-ends."

He became dissatisfied with his Indian Service job because "there was not enough work to do." Realizing the importance of finishing his college degree, he attended Montana State University in 1955 and graduated Cum Laude in the spring of 1956. The quest of a teaching position brought him to Eielson the following September, where he and his family have found special places in the hearts of all.

Because of the rich background he brings his teaching, because of the many extra hours of work and worry with which he supports every Eielson High activity, the staff of the Raven, 1962, sincerely dedicates this annual to:

MR. JOHN L. MOORE

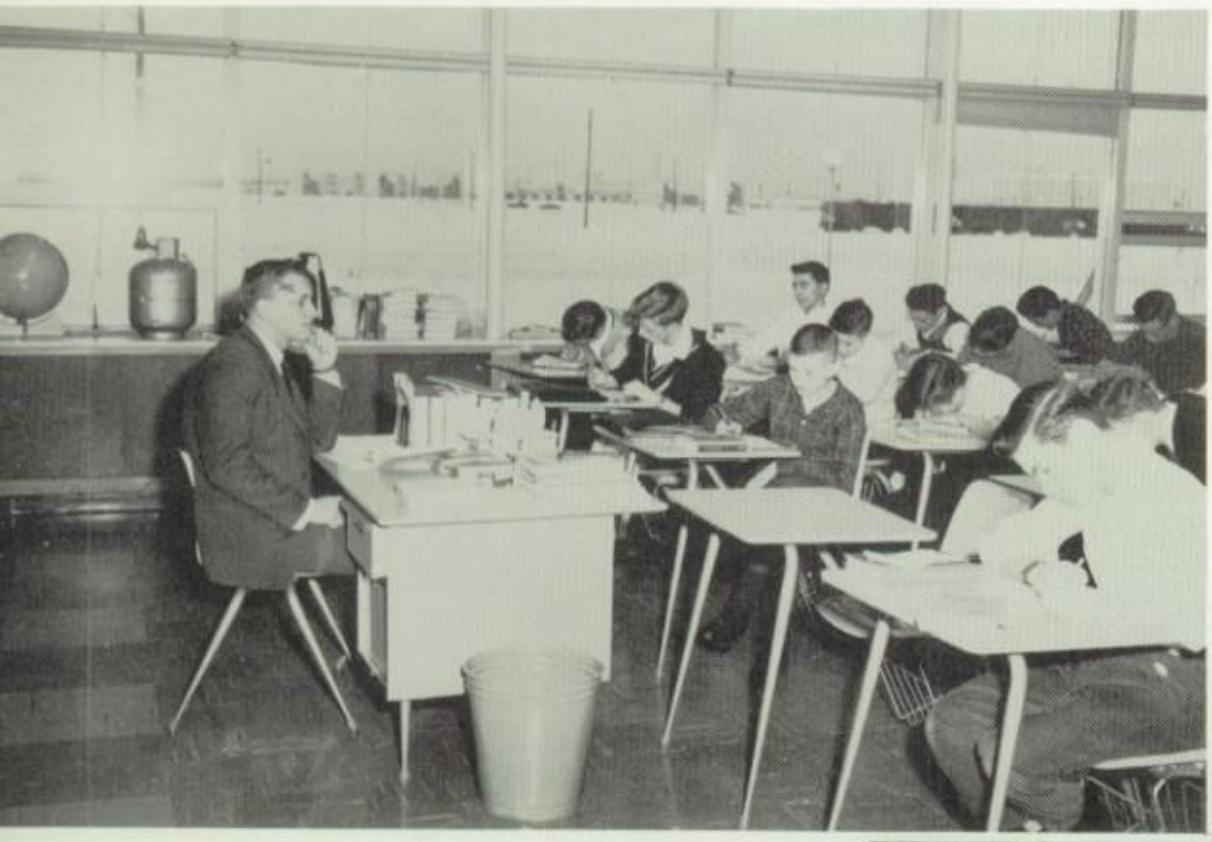
A Day in Our School

A day in our school begins promptly at 8:40 a. m. with the ringing of the first bell. As students file in, the halls bustle with friendly "hellos" and whispered gossip that simply has to be told before homerooms meet at 8:50. Students change classes at 8:55, and at 9 a. m. another day in our school is under way, a day of fun and work until 4 p. m.

In this section we have emphasized the academic side of life at Eielson High. We believe the learning instilled here to be the foundation for the wealth of knowledge we must acquire today and for the wealth of achievement we hope to accomplish tomorrow. Together with the social and athletic events pictured in the later sections of this yearbook, this typical scholastic "day in our school" provides us with a challenge in the present and a promise for the future: it provides us with the material of living.

EXIT

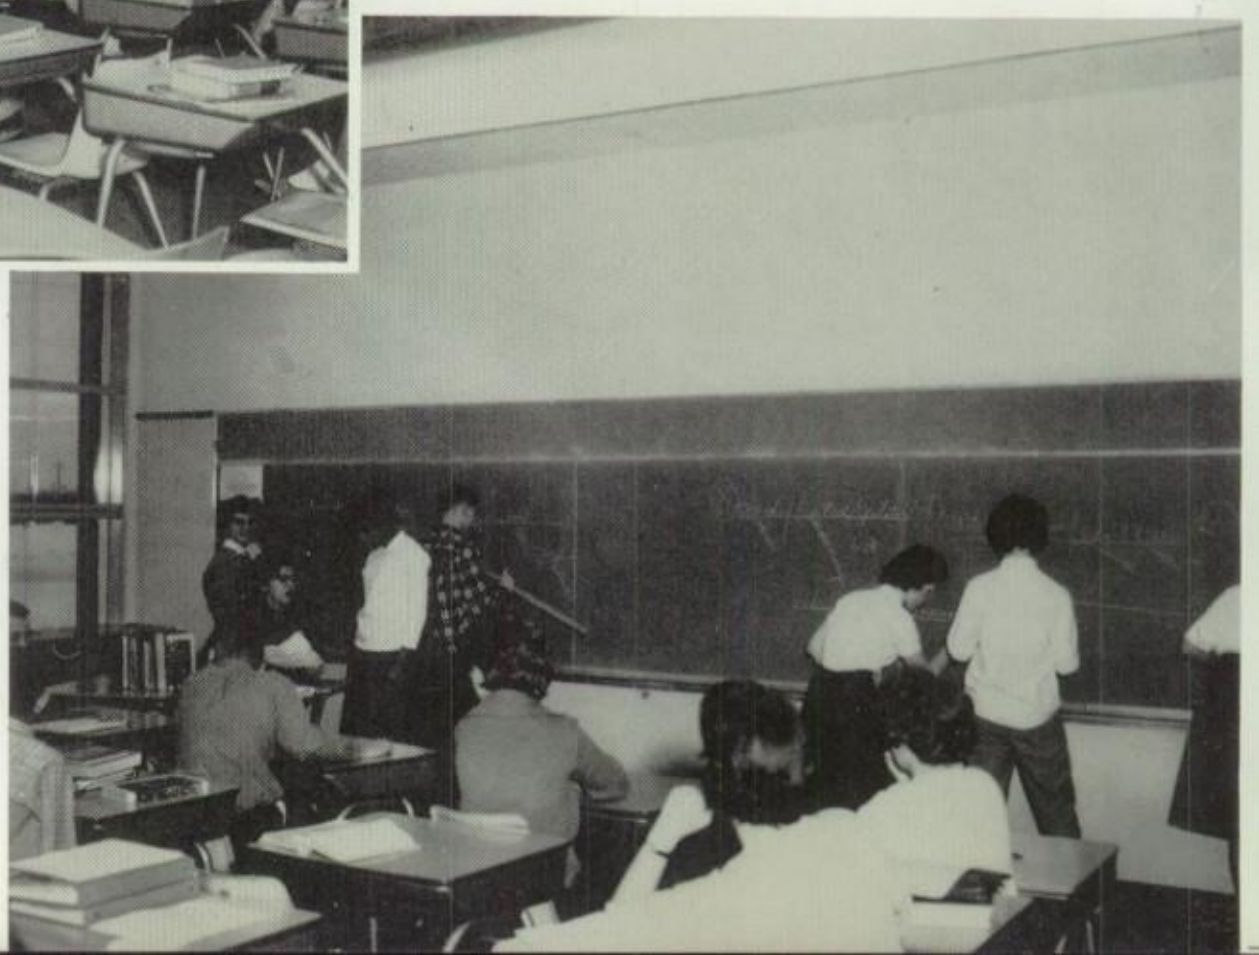
First Period



The squares go round in circles in Mr. Mages's first period geometry class.

When you smell something in the halls next time it won't be the chemistry classes conducting a unit on sulphur. Oops! Mrs. Mulligan's first period home ec class just burned the pizza.

The great debater, Mike Siwik, expounds on his profound philosophy in Mrs. Howard's first period English IV class.

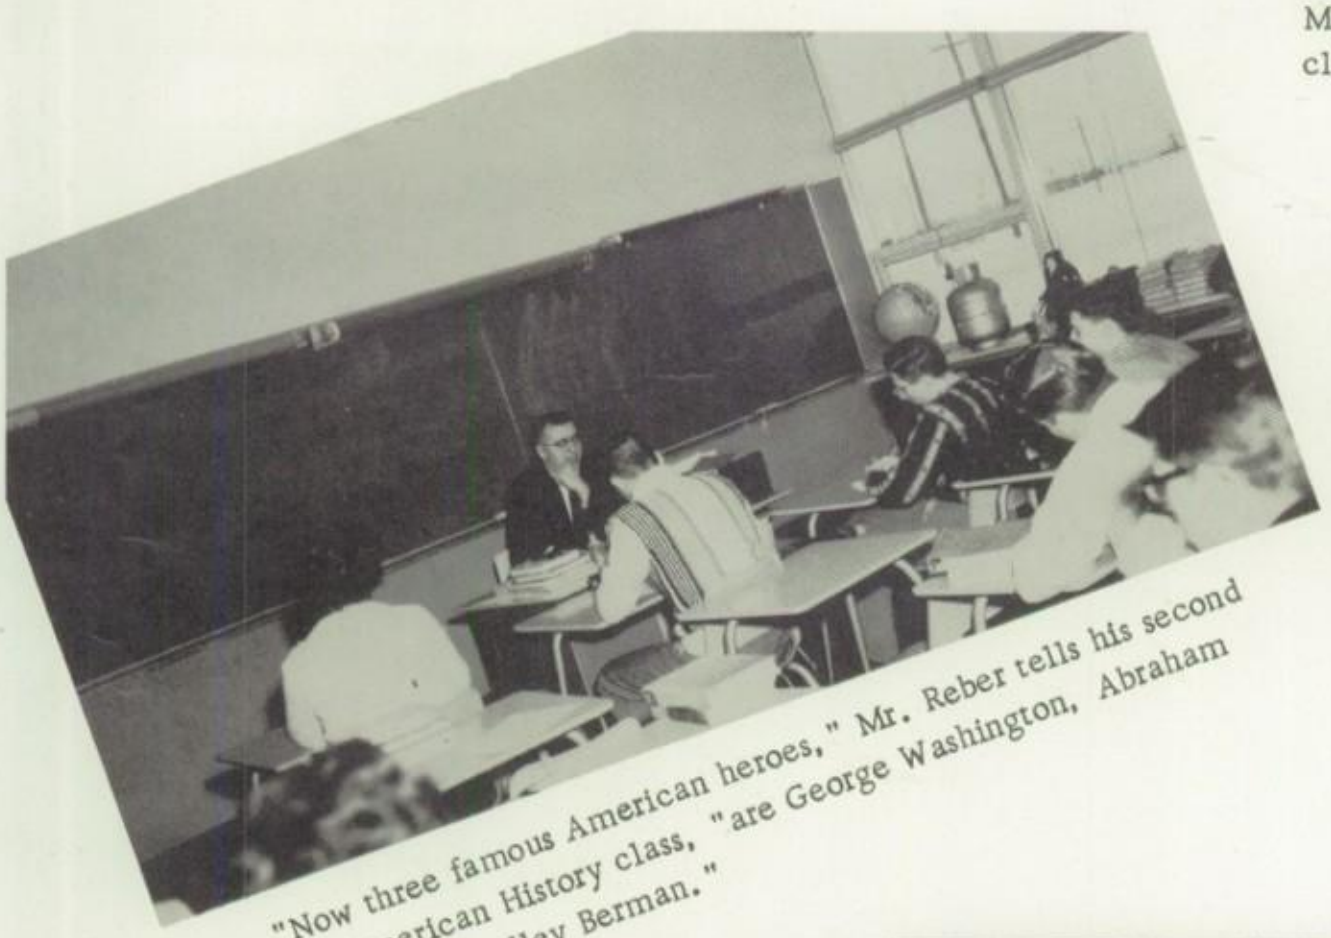


Sentence diagramming? All part of a day s work to Miss McNealy's first period English A Eighth grade group.

Second Period

"Now there are six kinds of pronouns," says Mr. Ryan hopefully. Sad, sad story.

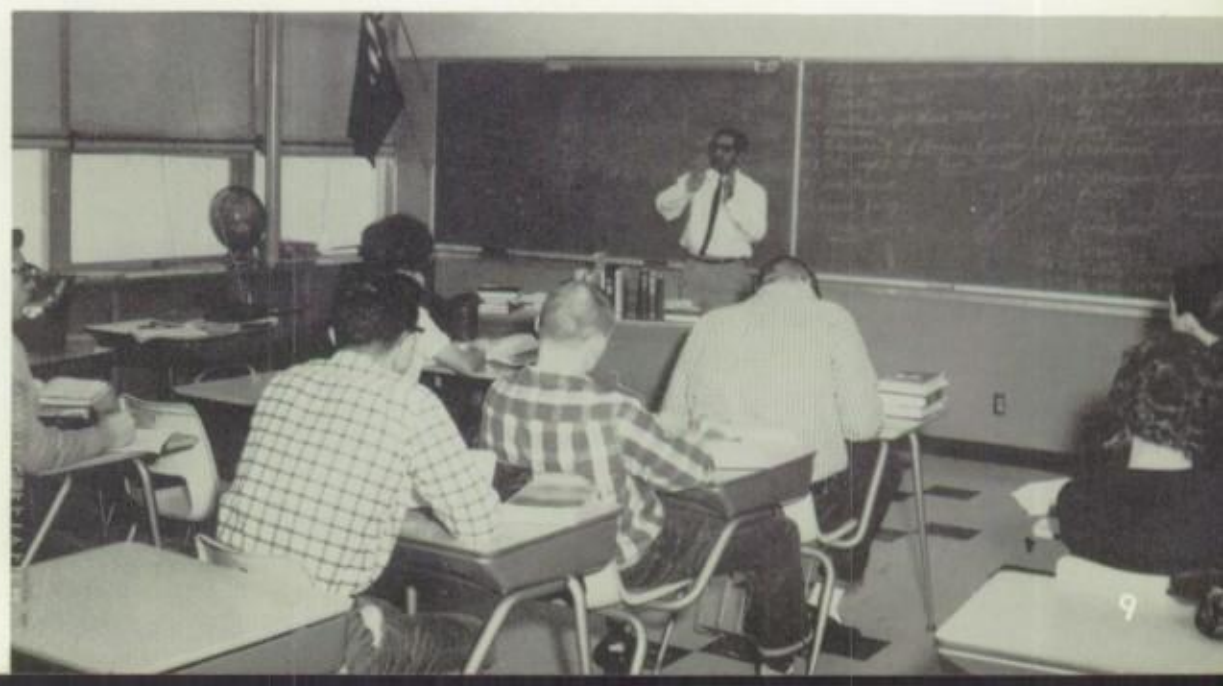
Mr. Walker teaches 8A second period history class.



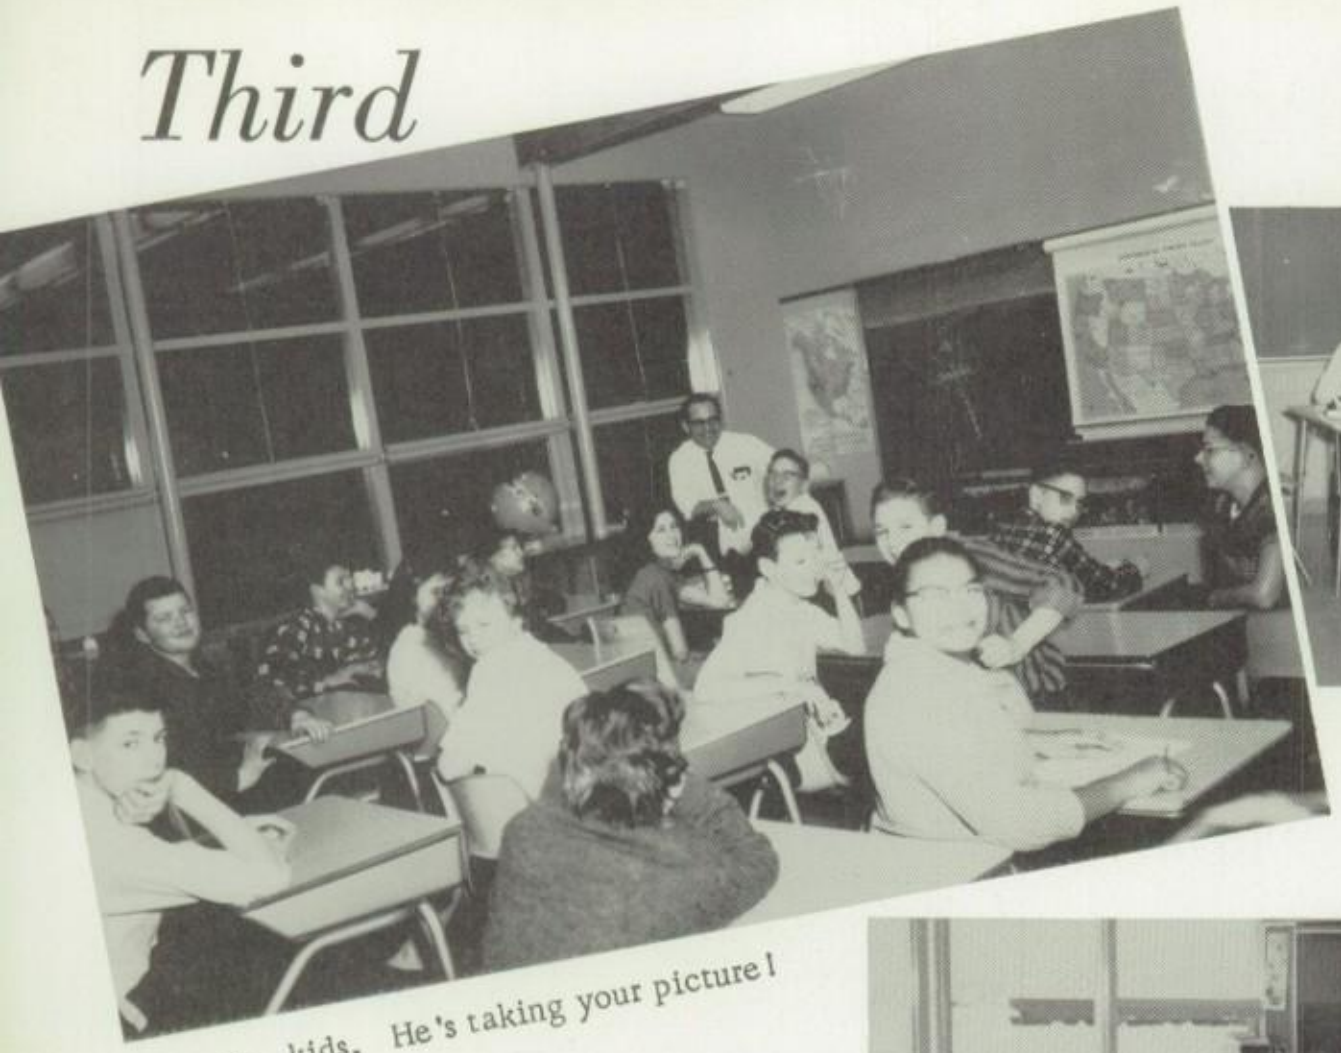
"Now three famous American heroes," Mr. Reber tells his second period American History class, "are George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, and Shelley Berman."

Second period home ec class went around in circles before the pizza sale.

Second period government receives Mr. Alle's much-talked-about "assignment for tomorrow."



Third Period



Smile, kids. He's taking your picture!

Doesn't the third period study hall look studious?

Mr. Reishus presents a lecture on world history to his third period class.

Visual aids like this play an important role in Biology classes.

Algebra II students study radicals - but not the political kind.

The quick, sly fox jumps over the lazy dog every day in typing.

Fourth Period

Some students in this study hall must have a test tomorrow from the signs of work in this picture.

The Physics laboratory flubs an experiment.

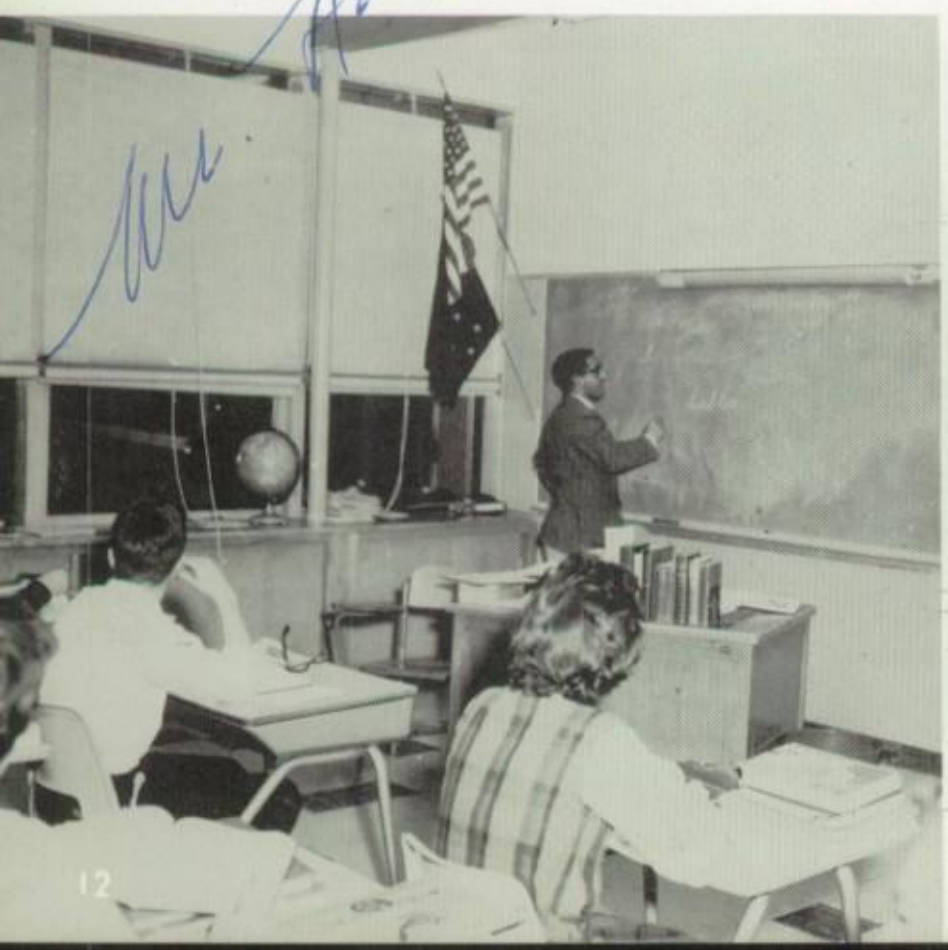
Dear Madam: We regret to inform you that Miss Lenz's fourth period shorthand class just had its picture taken. Sincerely yours, The Editor.

Fifth Period

Mr. Lindquist instructs pupils fifth period on the correct use of grammar.

American History students fifth period, unlike Mr. Reber and Mrs. Howard, long ago finished fighting the Civil War.

Para manana . . .



"I may be going mad . . . Believe that I am trying and be kind to me," reads Mary Chipman in fifth period speech. She is doing a scene from the famous play "Gaslight."

Sixth Period

Mechanical Drawing students meet sixth period in Mrs. Mulligan's home ec room.

Russian students decline a noun on the blackboard.

Mr. Devor gives a demonstration to sixth period aero-space students.

DR. THEO J. NORBY
State Commissioner of Education

Eielson High School is part of the largest school district in the world: Alaska's famous "District No. One," consisting of all the on-base schools and all the rural schools administered by the state education office.

These on-base schools, including Eielson, are administered for the Federal Government by the State, through the Dept. of Education headed by Dr. Norby.

Dr. Norby, in turn, sets up the "On-Base Schools System" for Alaska, a network reaching to such far-flung sites as Adak, Kodiak, Elmendorf, Ft. Richardson, Ft. Wainwright, and Eielson. In charge of administering these schools for the state are Mr. A. A. Ryan, director, and his assistant, Mr. Robert Hall. The long distance phone number of their office at Elmendorf is as familiar to Mr. Pape as his own. Constant communication and hard work with this office ensures Eielson's educators and students of professional, high quality leadership and a basic, well-rounded education.

In a few short years the students of Eielson will look back at their High School years with many fond memories. This annual of 1962 will serve you well with its graphic reminders.

I would like to wish each and every student of Eielson the "Best" in all future endeavors.

Sincerely,

Mr. Raymond Beling

Principal

MR. W. C. PAPE
Superintendent

The class of 1962 will be the last class to graduate from our present Eielson High School building. May they, as well as the underclassmen who look forward to a new high school, always remember happily the many enjoyable and stimulating experiences they have found here.

My best personal wishes to each member of the student body at Eielson High . . .

Sincerely,

Mr. W. C. Pape

First Will and Testament

The following first will and testament is made by the class of 1962, being of sound mind (?) and sound body (?):

I, John Alderton, will my three study halls to Dale Poteet and hope he will use them.

I, Terri Brooks, will my experiences of my twistin' senior year to Jeanne Corrigan.

I, Marsha Chipman, do regretfully, but willingly, will all my hair spray and makeup to Mr. Reishus, my homeroom teacher, who I know will be very grateful and will find much use for it.

I, Billy Cleary, will all my notes on Macbeth to Dave Mason.

I, Barbara Coleman, will the position of Treasurer to anyone brave enough to forget everything he learned in bookkeeping, and learn Mr. Moore's quick, easy bookkeeping system.

I, Robert Conti, will my half of the Three Musketeers, which I share with Mike Siwik, to George Savage.

I, Pat Corrigan, will myself to a certain bow-legged boy from Arkansas.

I, Dolores Featherall, will my ability of making straight "A's" in English IV Literature to Jane Boddie.

I, Judy Fox, will myself to one short boy in Atlanta, Georgia.

I, Barbara Gray, will Jane Boddie my transcript in exchange for hers, also my after school hours from 8-5.

I, Elaine Havens, leave my outstanding ability to take shorthand to anyone who likes to write secret messages and confuse teaches.

I, Ron Kelly, will my ability to get along with people to Mr. Beling, Mr. Alle, and Mr. Reishus.

I, Fred Kuykendall, will my "Black Pig" (car) and all its gutless power to Randy Orem.

I, Norman Mathews, will myself to Texas and my athletic ability to Mr. Devor.

I, Connie Mayer, will all my bad grades to Mr. Reber.

I, Anne Norris, and I, Betty Anderson, do hereby bequeath our positions as the backbone of the Eielson Girls' Basketball Team to anyone able to withstand the hardships and inhumanities of a certain female coach.

I, Judith D. Rademaker, being unheard of, will swear to it.

I, Jack Rolls, will my ability to get away with everything in study hall to Marty Lasater.

I, Richard Thomas, will my ability to sleep in Spanish II class to Randy Carter.

I, Deanna Wellborn, do hereby leave an appreciation of fine art to those highly cultured souls, the eighth graders.

I, Richard Nyren, being of cold feet, frostbitten ears, and empty pockets, leave Alaska to those who don't want it. Let them suffer for two or three years.

I, Mike Siwik, of great mental integrity and slim body, will my ability to lie to Lonnie Grisham.

I, Jerry Nimmons, do hereby will my bowling abilities to Mr. Devor.

I, Ken Schroeder, will my basketball skills to Lonnie Grisham.

I, Gary Woodhouse, will my shortage of brains to Mr. Moore.

JOHN RICHARD ALDERTON

He was Vice President of his sophomore class, and President of the senior class. Gary won the Spanish award as a junior through his outstanding ability in speaking Spanish.

Senior Christmas Formal

Sandi Falkner and Danny Pape enjoy the Formal together.

Fritz Jones brought Debbie Riley to the dance as his date.

Barbara Coleman poses happily on the dance floor with Ronnie McIntyre.

Senior Class Prophecy

Looking down from the steep cliffs about the city of Delphi in central Greece, one might be able to see Mr. Reishus entering the temple of Apollo.

Apollo is the god of the sun, and it is believed that he actually comes and talks to the priestess of his temple about important things of human affairs.

The priestess is called a sibyl, and she sits on a tripod, or a three-legged stool, over a fissure in a large rock. Out of the crack great blasts of air often rush. This air represents the breath of Apollo, and when the sibyl breathes in the air, she becomes inspired with the god's words.

The priestess of Delphi is very clever, for her words of wisdom and prophecy are so often good and true. It is for this reason that Mr. Reishus has traveled so far away; he has come to seek the future of Eielson's Class of '62.

As the sibyl turns the clock ahead a few years, this is what she sees:

John Alderton has gained world-wide recognition as a big game hunter; he hunts rare chipmunks on the tundra.

Betty Anderson has won the Nobel Prize in medicine for inventing a delicious mint-flavored castor oil, and has been sent to Asia to take over where Tom Dooley left off.

General Tom Bennett over the Alaskan Air Command is presently contemplating marriage into the Rockefeller family; it will be the sixth marriage for both.

Terri Brooks now teaches the twist to overweight women at the Handy-Dandy Health Studio on Second Avenue.

Professor Billy Cleary is teaching a course on marriage relations at Yale; he isn't married yet, of course.

Marsha Chipman has opened a new salon in Paris giving Christian Dior a few more gray hairs.

Bob Conti has blazed the famous Conti Trail across Barter Island.

Barbara Coleman has written a book that has reached the best seller list. It is entitled BOOKKEEPING: BY GUESS, BY GOSH, OR BY MOORE.

Ron Kelly is responsible for a new fad--building bowling alleys inside night clubs.

Pat Corrigan is prospering as a leading fashion designer for Sing Sing and other similar institutions.

Fred Kuykendall made a name for himself as a chaplain when he converted Nikita Khrushchev to Christianity.

Sandi Falkner is now a stewardess on the nine o'clock flight to Mars for the Way-Out Pape Lines.

Candy shop owner, Dave LeBlanc, won five gold medals in the 1968 Olympics held in Moke, New York.

Delores Featherall flooded a well-known theater with tears at the premiere of her first movie.

Norman Matthews can now be found broadcasting women's sports right after the six o'clock news.

Judy Fox collects taxes for the Internal Revenue Department (she received plenty of experience when she dogged teachers this year for third period absentee slips.)

Jerry Nimmons has proved that people are still as hungry for money as they ever were by starting the Uranium Rush of 1969 in the Aleutians.

Barbara Gray is the very contented wife of a millionaire who made his money herding seals in the Bering Sea; they now reside in Florida.

After making his first million pushing buttons on an IBM machine, Richard Nyren has heard that there is an opening at Cape Canaveral.

Roberta Hansen is now the wife of Ambassador Morgan to the Seminole Indians.

Jack Rolls has been successful in making rain for the growing of Walnuts in Arizona.

While trying a new cake recipe, Elaine Havens came up with an entirely different substance. She has been persuaded by General Mills to put it on the market as a super-hard cement.

The handsome and daring Captain Ken Schroeder captured a notorious spy ring with his swift Coast Guard cutter, the "Donald Duck."

Connie Mayer is now a soap opera star on the radio program SEARCH FOR YESTERDAY.

Mike Siwik is hanging tough on his debate with the state legislature about putting only twenty rocks on the highway instead of twenty-one in Fox, Alaska.

Anne Norris has swam the Amazon in record breaking time amid the dangerous piranha. (The piranha are man-eating fish.)

Richard Thomas is off on another of his wild adventures. He is presently sailing with a scientific expedition on a raft in the North Seas.

Internationally known for her expertly trained horses, Judy Rademaker paints the checks on checkerboards in her spare time.

After trying to race sport cars on ferry boats, Gary Woodhouse gave it up to homestead at Point Barrow.

Deanna Wellborn was crowned Miss America of 1964 by singing and dancing to her own musical arrangement of "Deep in the Heart of Texas."

National Honor Society Officers: Roberta Hansen, president; Anne Norris, treasurer; Elaine Havens, secretary; Janie Wellborn, vice president.

Becoming a member of the National Honor Society is the highest honor this school can bestow on any student. The Junior Honor Society encompasses the eighth, ninth, and tenth grades, while the National Honor Society membership is restricted to juniors and seniors. Membership in the N. H. S. is based on four basic principles: character, scholarship, leadership, and service. The Junior Honor Society has a fifth principle of citizenship. It is the purpose of these societies to uphold these principles in their daily life.

National Junior Honor Society officers: Elaine Hudson, vice president; Wayne Baird, treasurer; Peggy Pensinger, president; Doris Runkle, secretary.

Associate Editors: Circulation Editor Lois Watkins, Editor Jane Boddie, Asst. Editor Norman Matthews, Exchange Editor Janie Wellborn.

During the 1961-62 school year the Tundra Tribune strove to meet several goals. Some of these were: to increase school spirit, to promote better cooperation between students and teachers, to report accurately all news of schoolwide interest and to stimulate discussion of school related topics.

The newspaper staff introduced several new things this year. They officially started an exchange program, added a new title to the paper, and displayed snapshots in the photo case.

The staff worked under three sponsors - Mrs. Howard, Miss Lenz, and Miss McNeally; Mrs. Pape did the final typing; and the Reproduction Office printed the issues.

SPANISH CLUB - From left to right, BACK ROW: Diana Tidyman, Jim Parks, Sue Thompson, Randy Carter, Alice Mann, Bill Travis, Lonnie Grisham, George Anderson, Clyde Walton, Richard Thomas, Jim Haas, Phil Hocking, Larry Saylor. Saludos, alumnos y amigos. Esta notita es para informarles de nuestras funciones de este ano. Tenemas cerca de cuarenta miembros en nuestro club. Una de las funciones mas importantes, fue una tertulia para todas las miembros del club. Tambien preparamos canciones para la Navidad. El club presento estas conciones a los alumnos, maestros, y amigos de nuestra escuela. Algunos de los estudiantes estan correspondiendo con estudiantes de espanol de otras escuelas in partes differentes de los Estados Unidos. Esperamos que otros estudiantes aprendan espanol--Hasta la vista y buena suerte a todos.

Library Club

President Faye Bethune
Secretary Sandra Cardillo

Members of the Ben Eielson High School Library Club have carried a big responsibility this year. With Miss Margaret Hilton, librarian, heading the library program at Penell School each afternoon, club members have supervised the library in her absence. Student librarians work during their free periods checking out books, shelving, repairing worn volumes, cataloging, and keeping track of fines. Probably you have been greeted with a friendly smile and a "you owe a two cents fine" by one of these library club members during the year.

Chorus

Chorus students did much to make this year at Eielson High more pleasurable. In addition to the successful Christmas concert, the group sang at assemblies, participated in Music Festival activities, and performed for other special occasions. Soloists and other members of the group sang in the Miss Eielson pageant in April.

Band

The band this year was an active group under the direction of Miss Askov. These instrumentalists participated in the Christmas concert with the chorus and girls' glee club, played for basketball games, and enlivened several other occasions.

BEGINNERS' BAND: From left to right: Shirley Wright, Carol Ruch, Richard Byers, Kathleen Washtak, Bruce Cooper, Bonnie Brooks, Marlene Peterson, Tom Cox, Frankie Shea, and Mike Morgan.

A tense moment for #14, Danny Pape; #30, Larry Pensinger; #44, Marty Lasater; #22, Dave LeBlanc, and #24, Lonnie Grisham.

Jim Haas tries unsuccessfully for two points in game with Monroe.

Jim Haas, Ken Shroeder, Danny Pape, and Dave LeBlanc (background) hustle on defense.

Danny Pape, #14, goes up for two on a fast break.

A good jump shot by Dave LeBlanc.

Ken Shroeder, #34, drops in a counter to boost Eielson's lead against Monroe.

Dave LeBlanc, #22, lays one up for Eielson, followed by Pensinger and Lasater.

Marty Lasater fights out a rebound, with Dave LeBlanc in background.

Marty Lasater, #44, and Tom Bennett, #32, hustle for a Raven rebound.

Lonnie Grisham, #24, scores two on a play set up by Gus Doppes, #20.

Lonnie Grisham, #24, scores a two-pointer, as Jim Haas looks on.

Eielson's first five in action: Danny, Larry, Marty, Ken (behind), and Dave.

Dear Millie,
I sure will miss you when you leave. Even though I might have been indifferent in study hall, I sure did enjoy all the gossip you told me. I also thank you for introducing me all those people. I sure am sorry you're not taking all that beauty and sparkling personality from Edison and Alaska.
Love you,

Children of the Northland bold,
Steeped in its golden lore of old,
Its rugged strength, its wide-spread sky,
Its trees and mountains towering high,

Based in knowledge join the wise,
Seeing now through adults' eyes.
And may they now, by Heavenly Grace
Found an even mightier race.
